

One on One Consultation

The Behavioral and Social Science Training (BESST) Institute at UCSF offers tailored consultation services designed to support researchers, trainees, and community partners engaged in behavioral and social science research.

Expert faculty with extensive experience provide one-on-one or small-group consultations on a range of topics, including qualitative research methods such as interview guide development, analysis planning, and manuscript preparation. In addition, the BESST Institute offers feedback on program evaluation strategies and support in conceptualizing research projects from the ground up, as well as in shaping analyses, presentations, or manuscripts.

Whether refining study aims, strengthening methodological approaches, or enhancing dissemination plans, BESST faculty bring a wealth of knowledge, insight, and commitment to advancing rigorous and impactful research.
