Bio: Dr. Latkin is a Professor in the Department of Health, Behavior and Society, and the Department of Epidemiology, Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health (JHSPH). He has been the PI or Co-PI of numerous NIH-funded randomized clinical trial studies in the U.S. and internationally. He has published extensively on theories of social influence approaches to promoting health behavior change. His work focuses on HIV and STI prevention with disadvantaged populations, mental health and distress among inner-city residents, the role of substance abuse on HIV risk behaviors, and measurement of social-contextual factors including social and personal network analysis, neighborhood characteristics, and geographic information systems among disadvantaged populations. Dr. Latkin has helped design, implement, and evaluate over a dozen behavioral social network oriented interventions for disadvantaged populations, including men who have sex with men and substance users. He was the PI of the Baltimore site of the INSPIRE study, a CDC/HRSA funded HIV prevention intervention for people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHA) and the protocol chair for a network-oriented international HPTN HIV prevention intervention targeting HIV negative injection drug users. Currently, he is the PI for the SNAP study, which is a network oriented HIV prevention and care intervention for Black MSM.

If you are coming from outside Mission Hall, please RSVP to Estie Hudes to be put on the building security list.

Hope to see you many of you on November 27,

Thanks,

--Estie
